Educational Services.....

provides ACADEMIC ADVANTAGE

Are you the parent of a student struggling with math or reading? Are you worried about your child's performance on the SAT? Are you an adult who needs help preparing for a new career – preparing to take a standardized test (GED, GRE, PRAXIS) or that college class or on-line course that seems so overwhelming?

Carol Huppe, and her business, are here to help you navigate the often-difficult terrain of scholastic achievement. Aim High Center provides one-on-one tutoring/academic coaching at our conveniently located office at 26 Common Street in Saco. Aim High focuses on helping all students, Pre-K through college and adult, in all subjects and standardized test preparation. They service Greater Portland and Southern Maine.

"I'm passionate about helping students succeed," Carol says. "What we do here is focus on increasing confidence and self-esteem. I've seen first hand that anything can be accomplished once the person believes in him/herself. We couple that with someone helping you along the way. You are going to succeed."

Carol says, "Our Saco location allows the organization to provide more group lessons and classes, and also lends itself to providing areas for private, one-on-one educational offerings. Each day the center is filled with a staff of highly qualified master teachers with expertise in all subjects.

"We look for a perfect match for each student," she says. "We have over 30 teachers with expertise in all subjects and we match them based on personality and subject area. In order to maximize the learning it is essential for the student and tutor to 'click.'" We explore individual areas of interest to teach in a fun, creative way, with individualized attention.

We can help students with special needs, learning disabilities, and those students who have somehow fallen through the cracks and need help catching up to their potential. Unlike traditional learning centers, Carol partners with your child's school and works directly with your child's teacher to strengthen his/her performance in the classroom. Aim High Center staff infuses tutoring sessions with a focus on the importance of organizational skills and time management – two top priorities in putting a child on the path to learning.

"Once the confidence level is up, the skills are easier to work on," Carol says. "Confidence is one thing that struggling students don't have and we help them to believe in themselves. We want to engage, motivate and accelerate a student in building a strong foundation for a lifetime of learning. All services are individually planned and provided under the guidance of highly experienced certified teachers; Reading and Literacy Specialists, who are all passionate about helping students, attain higher levels."

Many parents look to AIM HIGH CENTER for academic coaching to strengthen academic skills and complement their children's athletic abilities. Carol believes the program helps athletes attain the grades needed to impress college scouts and justify athletic scholarships. "Many athletes come to us with great athletic ability but struggle with increasing GPA and SAT scores. We are here to help," Carol says.

We are very excited to announce that we have expanded services to include a preschool. "SMARTY PANTS PRESCHOOL" Our focus will be skill building reading/writing/math for school preparedness. We are currently accepting applications. Please see our ad description below!!
